Gamers will experience the ball as it behaves differently depending on whether players are actively trying to break free and chase down opponents or opponents are attempting to lure players away from the ball to make a tackle. FIFA 22 introduces new player intelligence: Managers and coaches can now remotely instruct their players to perform specific actions during the match. New ball physics will make it behave differently depending on if the player is close or far away from the ball and will react to the player's actions. For example, players' controlling and passing accuracy will increase when nearby to the ball and decrease when far away from the ball. The additional features outlined above will be the first pieces of new technology being introduced for FIFA 22. This post is also available in PDF form. Click HERE to Download. FEATURES: Striker Power: With the All-New Striker Power, players will be able to unleash their speed by sprinting and turning into a sprint at high speeds. The Sprint Dash is a new drill will allow players to sprint and immediately change direction to evade a tackle. Alternatively, players can make a long run and dive to attack a teammate. The sprint dash allows the player to run in short bursts and stop in mid-air before turning. On-Ball Intelligence: Players will experience the ball as it behaves differently depending on the player's actions. For example, the ball will behave differently near and far from the ball in headers and out-of-possession. Players will experience the ball not only based on their positioning, but also how close they are to the ball. The shot speed and trajectory of a pass will vary depending on if the player's attacking or defending teammates are close. The short pass will also behave differently depending on the player's proximity to the ball. Ball Intelligence: Players will experience the ball as it behaves differently depending on where they are relative to the ball. Players will experience the ball differently when they attempt to break free from their opponents and have a quicker, higher and longer reaction time when making a tackle in defense. Also, players will experience the ball differently when they are aerial duels. The ball will not only behave differently near and far from the player, but also based on if he is close to the ball in defense or defense.

Worth Pondering: Are We at the End? ... As for me, I call this law (Ex 20:12) the "great commandment." Love God above all (including country). For that is all I require. January 2 was the day that Joseph Smith Jr. famously announced that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints had been restored to the earth in 1820. That day turned out to be a far greater moment for the world than many imagined, and it has led to many fundamental transformations in human culture that few could have anticipated when Joseph Smith Jr. uttered those divinely inspired words. There are Christians who grumble about these changes. They claim that these changes are "unspiritual" or that they "distort" the Gospel. These will be some of the nastiest moments in the history of the world. People will abuse, persecute, and attack with such hatred that it's not even conceivable that we've seen anything like it in human history. And if you're paying attention, you will know that an influential movement is operating to set all this in motion. No sooner had Joseph Smith Jr. published the 1820 Prophet's Manifesto that the backlash began. The Church of the United Brethren of the Lord in Boston (a non-Mormon splinter group) printed a pamphlet, "A Proposal to the Saints," that called for the extermination of the Mormons. The federal Congress launched an investigation and set the stage for the state legislatures to follow suit. And the enemies of the Restoration began the "Crusade Against the Saints"—the first organized effort to unite in opposition to the restored Church. It's worth pondering how events actually unfold. You never know if something's going to be successful. In fact, some of the worst things imaginable would have succeeded if we could have seen them
